INVESTMENT COMMENTARY

Global equities staged a strong comeback in November after a few months of lacklustre performance. Inflation appears to be cooling and central banks are hinting that we may be approaching the end of the interest rate hiking cycle. However, we note that virtually all central banks brushed off the onset of brisk inflation a couple of years ago with talks of a transient regime. Macroeconomic forecasting is difficult.

Other news from around the globe included a surprise victory in Argentina's presidential election based on a platform that advocated dollarization of the economy. The Nigerian naira plunged against the dollar as high inflation rattles the economy. In Europe, Dutch voters took a turn to the right with a big victory for the Freedom Party in the national elections.

SKAGEN Global underperformed the benchmark in November. The fund's top three absolute performers were the credit-rating agency Moody's and the IT companies Microsoft and Accenture. It has been a strong year for Moody's and it is possible that the forward-looking market is sensing lower rates ahead, meaning greater demand from companies to refinance and gear up their bond issuance. The two IT giants Microsoft and Accenture have weathered the choppy economy well and both are likely to benefit from artificial intelligence over the coming years.

The three worst performers in absolute terms were the global premium cosmetics company Estee Lauder, the Danish freight-forwarder DSV and the freight railway operator Canadian Pacific. There is not much new to add regarding Estee Lauder and DSV, two names that we have addressed in our earlier updates. In the case of Canadian Pacific, the Mexican government has made some interventions in the domestic railway business that impacted sentiment negatively.

As the calendar year approaches its final stretch, the portfolio consists of a strong collection of undervalued companies with solid fundamentals, distinct competitive advantages and impressive leadership teams. We firmly believe that the portfolio offers a highly attractive risk-reward profile for investors who truly have a long-term investment horizon.
